Math

We talked some more about rates this week. We had a great time learning about our heart rates. We figured out our heart rates during 3 different activities then we found our class average. Finally, we graphed the results. Ask your child about it!

Some math time was spent this week taking the state science test and completing the 4th grade unassisted writing prompt. This was not graded and will not come home. It is placed in your child's file to be passed on to his/her 5th grade teacher as a writing sample.

Science/SS

Students spent the week continuing their research and narrative writing for their famous person project. Students can start compiling costume pieces and props at any time. They have been working on a costume planner here at school to assist in gathering materials. They may make costume or prop items here at school if necessary... it just needs to be done according to the timeline sent home last week.

Language Arts

Students spent most of their language arts time working on their SS projects. They did continue work on their fractured fairy tales and endangered species projects. The fairy tales will come home once they have been graded. The endangered species projects will stay on our bulletin board until the end of the year. Students also completed the final unit test for Language Arts this year! Yay!
